I waited a year to get the new great xfi internet box hoping they had worked out the kinks. Followed instructions to a T, I am pretty tech savvy..., and of course box did not work. Had to call them, stay on line to get it going, and 45 minutes later they finally got it working. I remember why I cut the cable with them (except internet). Can't wait to cut that too when the time comes for 5G. They still suck and if I owned a co., I'd never hire one of their condescending service reps, field techs that lie (multiple times on that one), and IT folks at their data centers because obviously they have no idea or care to field test things before they are sent out. I thought the ad was too good to be true, and sure enough, nothing has changed since my last interaction with them a year or so ago. There could not be a worse company in the world. Even BP oil spill was bad but the result of a few dumbasses and corporate greed - but Comcast - has forever been sucky with everything they do. Crazy. Short this stock for sure.... From the field to Hollywood, the power of the quarterback is the true hero of the game. And the most notable quarterbacks have been worthy of every nomination. So it comes to no surprise that Drew Brees notched his fifth straight appearance at the Top QB Ballot and his fourth appearance in the Top 5. While his coach, Sean Payton, pounced on the opportunity to lay this kind of claim, the high praise belongs to Brees. In the second web page, it's
